

Anna (she/her) is in her first term on Cincinnati City Council. Anna's focus in office is fostering a safe community and reducing gun violence by addressing root causes such as food insecurity, housing and access to healthcare.

Before being elected to City Council, Anna served as local group lead for Moms Demand Action and recording secretary for Madisonville Community Council.

In addition, Anna is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and serves as a Cincinnati Democratic Party Vice Chair and Precinct Executive for the Hamilton County Democratic Party. She is also a graduate of LEAD Ohio and a 2023 fellow for the New Leaders Council for Southwest Ohio.

Anna grew up in Anderson Township, the daughter of a small business owner and a public defender and the sister of two US Marines. Anna's husband works at P&G, and together they are dog parents to a rescue German Shepherd named Trooper. Anna earned her undergraduate and graduate degrees at Carnegie Mellon University and worked as a Senior Strategic Communication Consultant before joining City Council.
